Expressing Traditions Uniquely

With long lunch lines, jammed halls, new courses, thoughts of dates, dances, and athletics, school began. The time was to plan for the year's construction.

We each wanted to build a pedestal of our own, where we could stand and be known. But the plotting of a logarithmic curve, cheering at football games, dating, and even dissenting tradition was what had been done before. What was to make this year challengingly different?

We looked forward to doing the customary ourselves. Sweating into physical shape for athletic competition, tediously perusing Shakespeare, or proposing a Student Congress change was to participate within the framework of tradition. We even planned to emulate the past.

Previous years' achievements from professional play productions to high academic ratings provided goals. By conquering these goals, we would be experiencing and improving traditions in academics, athletics, and activities for the foundation of our own rising pedestal and the strengthening of our school's distinction.

1964-1965 would be uniquely different for each of us and for Shawnee Mission East.

ADMINISTRATION

An overflowing school district with 14,000 students and Shawnee Mission East with 2,350 students combined with changing educational methods provided challenges for district educators to meet.

Solving the problems of a fluxing society of population and beliefs was the educational duty of school directors. Dr. Howard McEachen, superintendent, headed district business and the School Board in newly built offices. As principal of Shawnee Mission East, Mr. Carl Ison was aided by vice-principals Mr. Richard Trast and Mr. David Schmidt. Four counselors assumed duties of future career programming, while a corps of office, custodial and cafeteria employees proficiently performed in needed functional capacities.

The year had technical difficulties from long morning announcements to overflowing paperwork of students' records. But the uniqueness of the administration was changing to different procedures to better manage school policy. Planning for a new high school or buying new textbooks demonstrated how the school officials uniquely approached the year with a flexibly changing mold.

Coordinating Business at District Levels

Dr. Howard D. McEachen, Superintendent

Finding sufficient space for the increased enrollment added another duty to the job of superintendent, Dr. Howard McEachen. With the Board of Education, Dr. McEachen regulated educational policies and concepts.

Communication was improved by specially created positions. Dr McEachen was assisted by consultants in their respective fields of science, math, English, and history. Others worked in the areas of special education and counseling, while the assistant superintendent coordinated these as consultant of curriculum.

New offices provided a more efficient workshop for the Board of Education. The board, an elected overseer of district functions, linked the administration and the community.

The effective coordination of the eleven area schools demonstrated district forethought.

Dr. Herbert I. Bruning, Assistant Superintendent

Administrators

As the business of the House of Representatives is conducted by its trusted speaker of the House, the internal and inter-school affairs of Shawnee Mission East were handled by our principal, Mr. Carl Ison. Similar to the major party leaders, vice-principals Mr. David Schmidt and Mr. Richard Trast fulfilled specific duties.

Coordinating all courses and activities, the administration sought to achieve harmony among all departments. The many responsibilities of the vice-principals included coordinating the club program, planning a schedule of assemblies, and dealing with any discipline problems that arose. As well as supervising the more than ninety faculty members, Mr. Ison represented East in district business and the program of the Parent Teachers' Association. Within the school itself, his voice was heard daily with announcements affecting occupants of many seats in the assembly of students and teachers.

Counselors Assist In Future Planning

Accepting the challenge of counseling high school youth, Miss Gene Criley, Mr. Richard Fisher, Mr. Philip Larson, and Mrs. Vinita Stevens were well prepared to serve all students.

Organizing the schedule of courses and adjusting students' programs were major tasks. After conducting standarized tests, the counselors received, distributed, and helped interpret scores for students who planned for the future by seeking the colleges right for them. Personal discussions with the counselors were supplemented by college catalogues and yearbooks, always available in the offices. Counselors helped complete college applications by forwarding individual transcripts and supplying personal recommendations.

Office Funnels Business Downpour

Handling the paperwork for a school of over 2400 students and faculty members necessitated indefatigable office workers. The women who undertook these tasks played a major role in the smooth functioning of Shawnee Mission East.

Employing efficient office techniques, they provided a workable system for carrying out the school's business. While secretaries handled all transactions, the nurse attended to health problems and medical records. Stenographers, bookkeepers and typists performed their duties to keep all school parts balanced and running effectively. Keeping massive files, sending replies to mail, and taking charge of the treasury were among their many responsibilities. Aided by a staff of student workers, they also recorded absences, issued passes, and served students at the counter. Acting in these many capacities, office personnel assisted the administration.

Mrs. Paula Laverentz checks her nurse's schedule to determine excuses, students' phone numbers, and their possibility of correlation.

Serving a Menu

Every machine has specialized parts that are necessary for efficient action, and Shawnee Mission was no exception.

Acting as these essential parts, custodians were present whenever they were needed. Sweeping up campaign posters, supplying chalk, and fixing squeaky windows, this able-bodied ensemble of men, headed by Mr. Gene Reed, comprised a major part of the auxiliary faculty of the school.

The cafeteria staff of thirty-three chefs, led by Mrs. Marietta Jack, prepared both salads and heavy luncheons for five shifts of hungry students. Lighter fare was distributed at the snack bar. These culinary experts provided tasty meals while fulfilling nutritional requirements.

Gene Reed, head custodian, includes dusting off empty soft drink bottles among his responsibilities.

Associating for Education Plans

To promote valuable cooperation, the Faculty Association and Parent Teacher's Association conducted meetings and programs.

The Faculty Association strived to improve the educational system as teachers from all district schools compared personal viewpoints. At Back to School Night the Parent Teachers' Association began its membership drive while parents started the school year by meeting teachers and gaining an understanding of the curriculum. Taking a look at the prospects of higher education, parents and students attended the P.T.A.'s College Clinic which featured representatives from fifty-three schools.

These organizations prepared to meet the future with understanding and willingness to work for a better high school operation.

ACADEMICS

The new year greeted us academically with September's paper work and another year of math, English, or language. But more than this, the academic year meant a unique relation of each student to his individual study, to his classes, and to his teachers.

The study matter of each course from language's irregular verbs to biology's nomenclature would be much the same material taught every year. But thinking through individual research was the excitement of learning. To solve an "impossible" algebra problem or to materialize ideas through English themes epitomized the uniqueness of the year's education.

Each day, this personal research was carried into the classroom, where group discussion of individual ideas created a specific atmosphere with the teacher as the moving force. Directing us to new books, maintaining a class of freedom of thought but of discipline of participation, and meeting students privately built the backbone of our educational system. The academic year was the combined uniqueness of faculty guidance, classroom presentation, and personal study.

When the year began, the scene was set for English students seeking to improve skills of composition and enlarge their reading backgrounds.

Sophomores made their debut by examining all forms of literature for subject, theme and style. Concentrating on the English culture, dramatis personae of the junior class perused scripts of Browning and Shakespeare. The senior company performed as critical thinkers seeking clear statement through logical thought. Supported by a more powerful vocabulary after 30 Days, they sought an understanding of Modern Poetry. Equipped with grammar books as props, all students dramatized ideas through themes and essays.

Pronouncing Presence

Speech and drama students exchanged stage fright for stage presence during the year's study.

Beginning with elementary techniques of pantomime, drama students grasped an understanding of acting skills. Knowledge of physical projection aided actors as they progressed to monologues and dialogues. Applying newly learned techniques of make-up, dramatists transformed classmates into Eliza Doolittles and Harold Standfasts.

Speech students perfected fundamentals of elocution. Varied speech assignments found orators using library references for debates and serious speeches, while a light touch was added as aspiring comedians prepared humorous speeches.

With the learning of a foreign language as the year's goal, linguistic students at Shawnee Mission East began the stages of development from unilingual to bilingual thinking.

As major levels of their study program; grammar, vocabulary, conversation, and translation were scrutinized by students with the aid of prepared texts and lab sessions utilizing recorders, tapes, and conversational guides.

While French linguists turned out newspapers in their newly acquired tongue, and Spanish playwrights directed short stage productions, all students devoted their spare time to frequenting banquets or decking the halls at Christmas time with traditional carols.

The realization of accomplishment through the broadening of horizons of understanding came as foreign language students grasped the methods of mutual communication.

Studying Man's Behavior Throughout the Centuries

Presidential election year afforded students of social science an opportunity for study and analysis of history and human relations.

The 1964 election was one of numerous events American History classes studied as they traced their heritage from the words of George Washington to the speeches of the presidential candidates. From cave man to modern commuter, World History scholars followed man's development as he progressed from life as an isolated individual to commutative living in a complex society. The nation's finances and monetary values occupied the thoughts of Economics students, while aspiring diplomats discussed the prospects for a peaceful world as they explored International Relations. Citizenship provided seniors with a basic understanding of all aspects of social science to provide a comprehensive guide and reference for improving tomorrow's world and creating tomorrow's history.

Scientific Research and Discovery

Curiosity overflowed from test tubes as inquisitive students explored alien laboratories. These ingenuitive scientists soon discovered the delicate equipment had experimental value as they attemped to decode lab instructions.

Prompted by supervising teachers, novice biologists dissected leopard frogs. More advanced, physicists equated matter and motion, while chemists tested the workability of intricate formulas. Aspirants of the field found value in perfected paper work as they delved into the subject. Combining experience and paper work in the correct proportion, scientists discovered the formula for success.

Knowledge, relative to research and experimentation, was systematically catalogued in students' minds, as eager scientists developed.

To Balance Equations

Mr. Casebeer animates his geometry learning with gestures to aid Susan Woodruff in defining set notations.

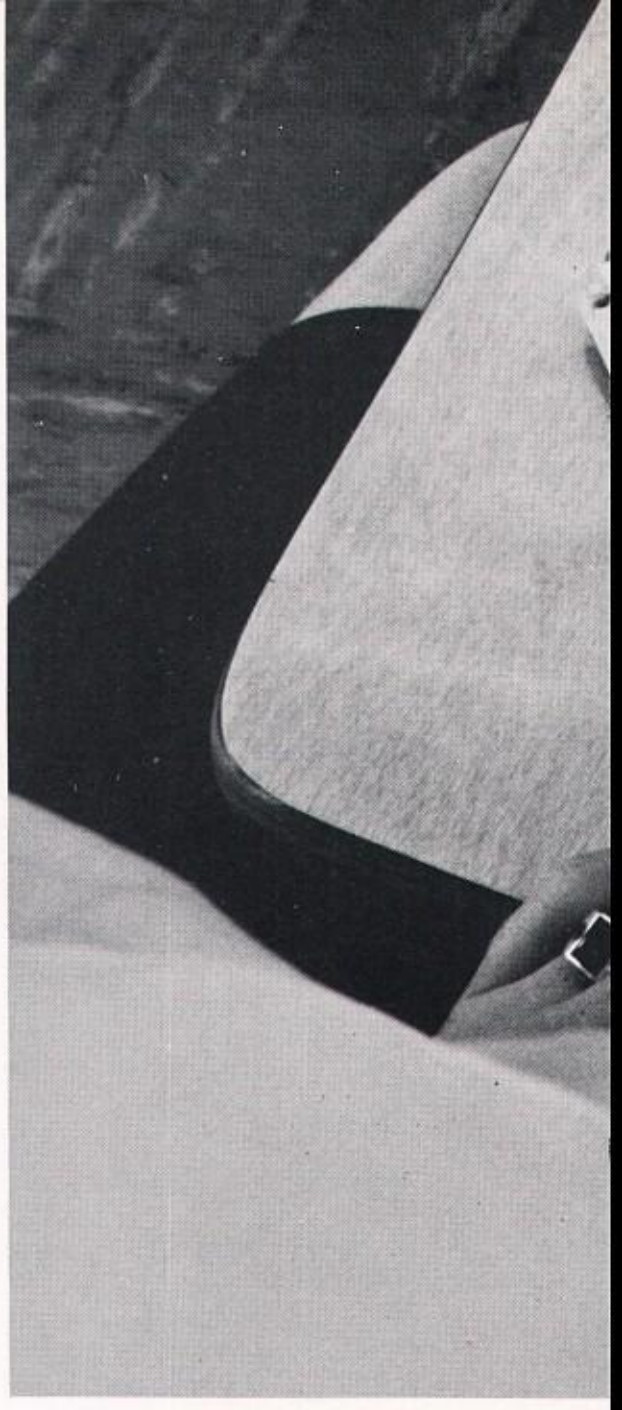
Square roots, parallelograms, and logarithms were among the deluge of mathematical terms which faced returning mathematicians last fall. Fundamentals served as the base of a pyramid where all math enthusiasts began.

The scope of programs offered encompassed each student according to interest and ability. Geometry pupils' definitions, postulates, and theorems were equal to variables x and y of the Algebra I students. Trigonometry and Algebra II divided middle-classmen, while senior math scholars explored the numerical realm of Analytical Geometry and Trigonometry.

The new math provided students an unusual opportunity to explore the roots of mathematical reasoning. Set notation, a new concept of numerical organization, challenged bracket-weary computers. Disciples of this new math; solving problems in terms of principle, function, and proof; discovered imagination an asset.

Numbers added up on the calendar as school drew to a close. The year's efforts, comparable to a pyramid, included a solid base of rudiments and an apex of mathematical progress.

Handling business matters efficiently, this business student pauses to check and correct his errors, as he progresses to greater speed.



Bidding for Business Skills

Following magic words of texts and teachers, business students gained dexterity of the hand and quickness of the eye.

Equipped with sharpened pencils, shorthand and notehand wizards decoded secret script to recognizable language. Caught in a maze of facts and figures, bookkeepers opened ledgers to balance assets and liabilities. Business law scholars tried persistently to make problems disappear from legal contracts and negotiable instruments. Practicing black and white magic on typewriter keys, typists were joined in their plot by those who learned all the tricks to the operation of business machines.

Increased proficiency was no illusion to students after a year of toil and trouble. Predictions of the future indicated that with patience and cooperation the potion for mastery of business skills could be discovered.

Encompassing Automobiles

Intrepid drivers and mechanics entered the world of automation as the year began. Automobiles and their multitudinous parts became an integral segment of students' lives.

After committing to memory fourteen steps of starting a car, novice drivers ventured onto the streets. As experience increased, even parallel parking was mastered. While drivers' education students drove cars, auto mechanics students repaired them. Spark-plugs, filters, and manifolds combined to make smooth running engines; while brakes, wheels, and dashboard controls enabled drivers to regulate their cars. Study and experience enabled motorists and mechanics to develop automobile skills.

Building Capable Craftsmen

Practical arts students broke the ground for a year of development of skills by studying methods of construction and becoming acquainted with the use of various tools.

With knowledge of shop techniques as a foundation they began to build competence and ability. The products of increased proficiency included expert workmanship and adroitness along with useful and decorative articles. From wood and raw metals resourceful hands formed creative objects. Elementary, mechanical, and architectural drawing classes drafted plans for future occupations or just constructive hobbies.

Finishing touches completed the education that built facility in industrial arts.

Clothing classes gave neophyte seamstresses a chance to practice correct fundamentals while they learned to make handsome garments.

Spring approached, with softball and track for boys and tennis and badminton for their female counterparts.

A Time and A Place for Scholarly Inquiry

Study halls gave students a chance to relax from the day's schedule of classes and an opportunity to finish an assignment or begin tomorrow's work. To many it provided an hour to explore and enjoy the resources of the library.

Serving as a focal point for the pursuit of knowledge, the library offered students valuable sources including periodicals, encyclopedias, and reference books, as well as a multitude of fact and fiction books from which to draw material for research and recreation. This year for the first time a photo copier made it possible for students to purchase copies of articles for personal use. Librarians, Miss Lane and Mrs. Hibbs, were always available to answer students' queries and guide students in their quest for information. An hour of library or study hall inquiry aided students in research.

PLES

ACTIVITIES

Shawnee Mission East was a high school devoted to the education of its students, but the learning was more than classroom instruction. The varied school activities, beginning in September and continuing to graduation in May, offered programs to develop skills.

Student Congress and class officer leadership; debate tournaments; dances from the Cave Dance to the Senior Farewell; athletics with Pep Club support at games and assemblies; instrumental and vocal music concerts; drama through play productions and the Thespian assembly; journalism with the Harbinger newspaper and the Hauberk yearbook were activities available for students to join to broaden their education.

Achieving a consistent free throw touch in basketball or learning timing for a dramatic production were skills that could be performed every year, but not perfected by us without personal experience. The activities program was unique in particular aspects with a weekly newspaper and different play presentations and dance themes, but the uniqueness that will endure was learning through individual participation in activities.

Courses with Casualness

Although summer school once provided only an opportunity to make up work, more students found the summer program at Shawnee Mission East an excellent way to supplement regular course study.

Last summer's session, directed by Mr. David Schmidt, drew a record number of 725 students. Each student chose a course for intensive study during June and July, although some courses offered for one-half credit lasted only one month. Subject matter ranged from Biology to American History, and for the first time Art, Algebra II, French I, and Spanish I were included. Active Participation Commences the Year

With September came the beginning of a new school year and each day sped by, bringing with it the initiation of another new activity. Students soon found themselves drawn into the frenzy of academic and extracurricular life. While athletic competition began with football and cross-country, pep club organized support through its membership drive. After hours of preparation, the drill team gave its first performance. Student Congress representatives were elected from each homeroom, and the executive committee smoothly coordinated events. Posters proclaiming the election of class officers soon filled the hallways. Veterans and beginners commenced participation in debate clinics and music concerts. A medieval setting provided the perfect atmosphere for the first school dance, bringing the hectic month of September to a successful close.

A Horn of Plenty of October Events

Living in the heat of an Indian summer, Shawnee Mission East students found the month of October filled with memorable events.

Dad's Night and the homecoming game highlighted the football season, and the homecoming dance provided a social event complete with a reigning queen. Fall Play Spotlights November's Activities

Drifting in with November leaves was the school production of "Love Rides The Rails" or "Will The Mail Train Run Tonight?"

An indomitable hero, Truman Pendennis, and his faithful love, Prudence, fought to uphold the franchise from villains Simon Darkway and Dirk Sneath. Their plans were interrupted by saloon girls and the feeble Widow Hopewell, who humored the plot. Lifelong desires to hiss and cheer came true for a receptive audience, encouraged to participate.

Sets included everything from steaming locomotives to "Home Sweet Home". When the final train whistle sounded on November 21, the memories of a month's work slipped into the past.

Resting her weary feet, Prudence blushes at the boldness of her sweetheart Truman, who asks her opinion of the hillside flowers.

and Holidays

With the coming of the last month of the calendar year appeared the beginning of a new season for Shawnee Mission East students.

After starting the basketball schedule with an away game, the first home match featured opening ceremonies and a look at Santa's Toy Shop with the premiere half-time performance of the Synchronettes. Another premiere, student talent assembly, included folk-singers and two combos, as well as novelty acts.

The Yuletide season, climaxed by a Frohliche Weinacten at the German Christmas Dance, was evident at the school. The office Christmas tree and students purchasing American Field Service "Bells for Peace" livened the halls, while varied choral groups and foreign language students serenaded classmates.

As December ended, students flocked to the exits and abandoned academic cares, until the start of a new year and first semester's end.

A New Year Ends First Semester

January's debut found students returning from vacation to the daily routines of school life and the approaching end of semester.

Basketball games with West and North were followed by a mixer on the first weekend after vacation. Debaters who attended the district tournament at Wyandotte returned with a 9-7 record and fifth place. With the closing of the first semester, the Harbinger changed its staff. Basketball players missed mid-year exams when the team traveled across the state to play in the Dodge City Tournment and place fourth. After the week of finals, an informal East Side dance reflected a general release of tensions shared by all. Last minute schedule changes flooded the school with blue transfer sheets just before the month ended.

A Valentine Spirit for Sweetheart Crowning

February was a month of hearts and flowers and basketball sweethearts at Shawnee Mission East. The 1965 Basketball Sweetheart was elected by Pep Club members from fifteen finalists the basketball team chose. For the candidates, a week of anxious waiting followed the voting.

During halftime at the Topeka Central game on St. Valentine's Eve, the drill team donned its red and white uniforms and marched onto the court to form an aisle leading to the royal throne. Expectancy grew as members of the 1965 court were presented. A sudden hush settled on the crowd, then a burst of applause sounded as attendants Lainie Larkins and Peggy Fortenberry were introduced. A standing ovation greeted the 1965 Basketball Sweetheart, Margie Porter, as she advaced toward the huge pink and white heart framing her throne. Crowns and pink and white carnations were given to the sweetheart and attendants. A decorated gym awaited the royal court who reigned over the mixer following the game.

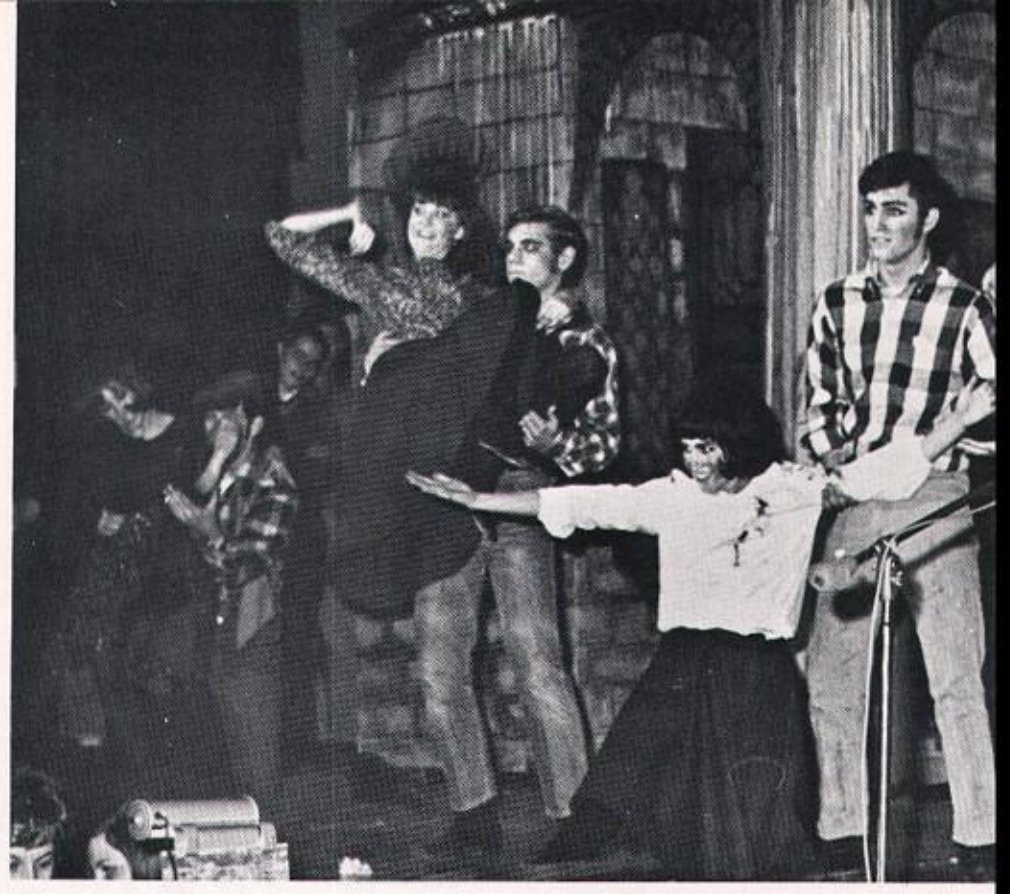
Elocutionary Lark Cockneyfies Musical



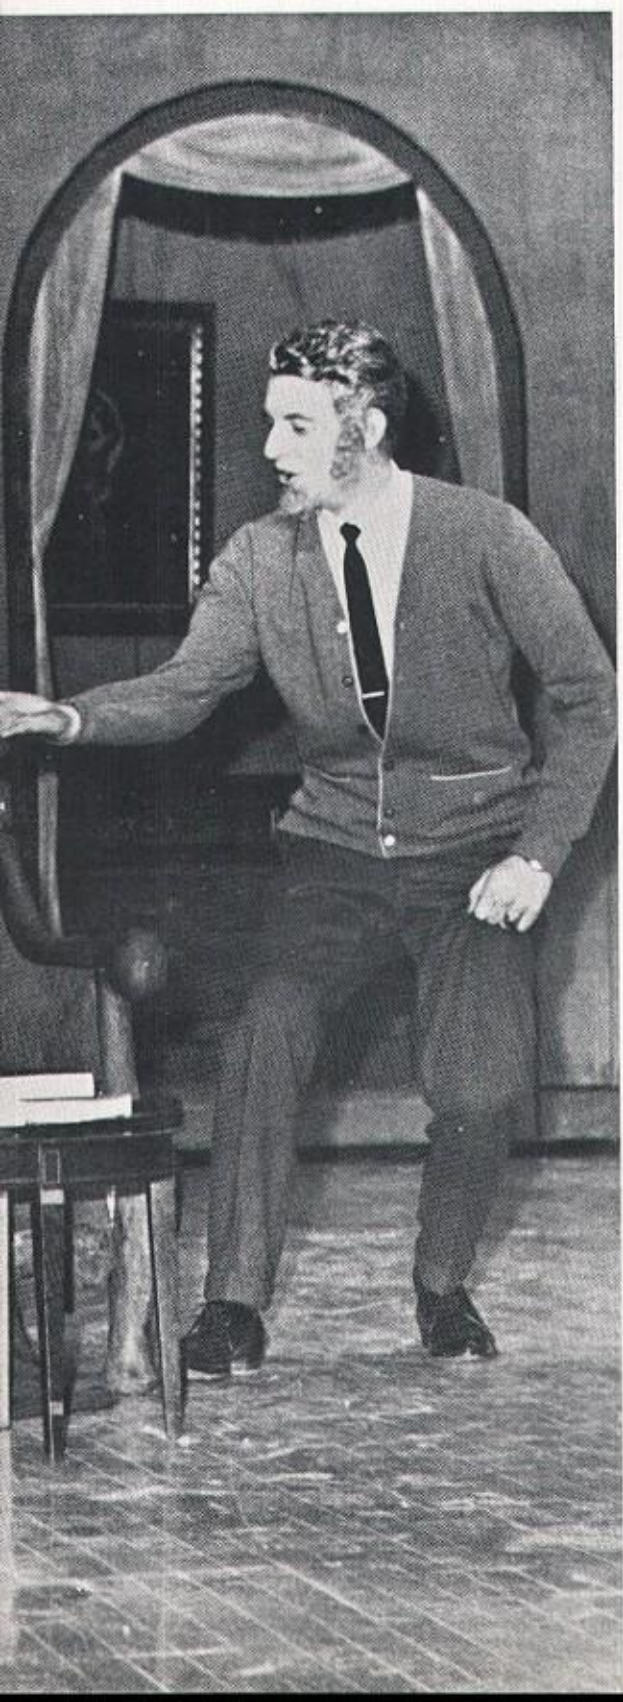
Cockneys abandon vegetables and flowers to send Alfred Doolittle into the realm of marital bliss.

Once a ragged, Cockney flower girl living on the London streets, Eliza Doolittle finds herself in Professor Higgins' parlor learning the speech and social graces proper in high society. Transformed by months of practice, she emerges, a beautiful, refined lady.

The loverly notes of My Fair Lady filled the school auditorium from early December to the last performance on February 20.

Adapted from George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion, the plot of rags to riches sparkled with a cockney-speaking cast. The contrast of high society balls and London slums spotlighted Professor Henry Higgins' attempt to change Eliza Doolittle, a peasant flower girl, into an elegant lady. While Eliza paced through speech exercises to disguise her cockney dialect, backstage crews wielded hammers, paint brushes, and scissors. This scenery preparation, along with a smudge of dirt and tousled hair carried the audience to nineteenth century England.

Three sell-out performances necessitated a public dress rehearsal, which proved as successful as the other three performances.



Mrs. Pearce emphatically objects to the presence of Freddie Eynsford-Hill on the street where Eliza lives.

Hauberk Queen

Reversing regular procedure, the females of Shawnee Mission East treated the boys to a "Jovial Jig" This casual affair set the scene for the coronation of the 1965 Hauberk Queen.

Long range preparation and prodding on the part of the girls resulted in a record attendance of 800 people. Free dinners, free transportation, and free admission were among the treats of the evening for empty-pocketed males. Fresh or artificial flowers dressed boys' buttonholes, as couples bobbed to the music of the Dimensions or merely giggled at the contemporary greeting cards, decorating the gym walls.

Suspense mounted as the Hauberk coronation drew near, and dancers paused to form an aisle for the royal court. Queen Kim Williams and princesses Janet Jones and Janie Griffey were presented pink roses and traditional crowns.

The Queen and court reigned a few moments before aisle became a kaleidoscope of swishing skirts and chattering voices.

Juries Find Karen

Indicating that District Attorney Flint is the target of his sarcasm, Larry Regan examines a murder weapon.

In the final production of the year, the drama department portrayed the trial of Karen Andre for the murder of Bjorn Faulkner on The Night of January Sixteenth

A series of witnesses, including a burlesque dancer, a handwriting expert, a gangster, a Swedish housekeeper, and a financier, related the happenings leading up to, following, and on January 16 from varying points of view. The tension in the courtroom, where the entire play took place, mounted as each witness testified to his part in the tale. While the jury deliberated, each witness reviewed his testimony. Karen Andre was acquitted by both juries, who were picked from the audience.

A suspenseful drama, the murder trial of Karen Andre climaxed another drama season under the direction of Mr. Rawley Farnsworth.

Importing the Splendor of the Middle East

Anticipation surrounded Prom time. As the magical day approached, juniors slaved to transform the ordinarily barren gym into a faraway, romantic land in honor of senior classmen.

The evening arrived, and after winding through the mystical aurora of a dimly lighted cave complete with a ancient treasure chest, guests entered through dark, silent gates to find themselves suddenly in the midst of the splendor of an Arabian city at night. A courtyard and life-size, three-dimensional buildings added to the impresssive air of the city. Off city streets a quiet pavilion reflected the extravagent tastes of the Arabians. Sheltered booths provided a place to enjoy the evening's feast. Dancing to the music of Warren Durrett and his band, juniors and seniors spent an enchanted evening under a starry sky.

The mystic allure of a setting from the tales of ancient Arabian nights created a night and a Prom of lasting memories.

Prom committee chairmen are floored with the amount of artistic preparation needed for the Junior-Senior Prom.

ORGANIZATIONS

Joining organizations in high school did not mean just adding to the yearbook's senior summaries or the official high school transcript. The varied school activities, through which skills could be developed, centered around the work of organizations.

The Student Congress through its committee and weekly Wednesday meetings provided a forum to present new ideas and to organize dances, assemblies, directories, and the annual American Field Service Carnival. The Harbinger and Hauberk with its honorary Quill and Scroll represented the journalistic department. Drama through the Thespians and music with bands, madrigals, and choirs presented stage productions. Debaters and speech students competed in state-wide tournaments and earned membership in the National Forensic League. The athletic teams received support from the Pep Club, Honor L, cheerleaders, and the Synchronettes. From the leaders of organizations and academics, the National Honor Society inducted new junior and senior members. The year offered each student the chance to uniquely participate in organizational activities.

and Committee Work

Summer conferences initiated Student Congress officers to leadership procedures. Steve Brick and John Bergholt compared Camp Cheley ideas with notes from Ft. Hays, attended by Tom Brown and Jeanne Oakson. This preparation and the work of 120 representatives computed the success of Student Congress.

Too much business and too little time characterized weekly meetings. New Business saw such action as discussion of constitutional revision, a traveling trophy with West and North for all athletic competition, and service pins. Other legislation involved a juke box for the cafeteria, an exchange with Central High School in November and an exchange with New Trier High School in Winnetka, Illinois.

Committee duties from dances to directories; legislative proposals; and the Student Congress Workshop for area schools demonstrated the necessity of student government.

The Evaluations Committee, under chairman Jack Clark, discussed the outcome of Student Congress programs and recommended changes for future functions. Advertising all Student Congress activities was the duty of the Publicity Committee,which was chaired by Ann Willyard. With posters and announcements they publicized such functions as dances and the Exchange Carnival. Projects undertaken by the Service Committee led by Dave Robinson included coordinating dance assignments, supervising the printing of student directory, and with the Elections Committee organizing the annual Christmas card exchange.

O. C. A. Establishes a Union of School Activities

In order to maintain a more perfect union among intra-school events, the Organization for Coordinating Activities consulted with individual students and school organizations.

Representatives from every phase of school life worked together under the direction of John Bergholt, Student Congress vice-president. Pep Club president and vice-president, captain of the drill team, Honor L president, head cheerleader, class presidents and vice-presidents, Hauberk and Harbinger editors, and band president comprised the O.C.A. Members combined efforts in executing various duties, including the election of A.F.S. king and queen and homecoming queen.

Summer Simulations Of Political Proposals

Last summer eleven beginning politicians practiced government at Boys' State and Girls' State. With other Kansans, these statesmen simulated state democracy.

Boys' State delegates, sponsored by the American Legion, held high offices. After gaining the nomination of either the Nationalist or Federalist party, participants ran for state office. While staying in university dormitories, conventioneers also learned to march in formation. Girls' State provided a similar pseudo-government assembly.

A week of writing and passing laws, acting as administrators, and electing officials benefited all delegates.

Linking Chains of World Understanding

An international flavor permeated the school this year as seven foreign exchange students, more than any other area high school, blended into academic and activity life.

Jane McClintock, sent from Shawnee Mission East to Brazil last summer, was sponsored by the American Field Service, as were four of the diplomats sent here. The International Christian Youth Exchange supported three students. All were chosen after extensive speeches and interviews. While here, the exchange students assumed new everyday experiences, including attending dances, games, and listening to morning announcements.

By living the daily habits of their foreign families, the exchange students served as a vital link between students here and abroad. Ideas and knowledge were traded, as understanding between people brought friendship.

To Lead Pep Club Masses

Competitive spirits, school loyalty, and boundless vitality drew students into the bonds of the Shawnee Mission East Pep Club.

On Friday afternoons students thronged into the gym for the weekly pep meeting. Spirits grew and enthusiasm mounted as the pep club executive committee led pepsters in rousing recognition of past and forthcoming events. Pep talks from coaches and team members, animated skits, and vivacious cheers contributed to the weekly meetings, bolstering determination and eagerness to inspire the team to victory in future competition.

Eager pep club members showed their loyal support of the Lancer teams both vocally and manually as they worked diligently on homecoming, hospitality, check-in, and poster committees. From pep assemblies to games, students enthusiasm enveloped all it touched.

Conductors of Spontaneous Spirit

The initial force which gave impetus to a thunder of unified pep encouragement was embodied in a corps of cheerleaders. With a wave of a pom-pom and a shout through a megaphone, the spirited cheerleaders co-ordinated the loyal efforts of the Pep Club members.

Their duties varied from daily practice for perfection of chants and footwork to the depiction of riotous disaster befalling rival mascots in Friday afternoon pep assemblies. Cheering at athletic games, the vivacious pepsters also instigated the "Burning of the Charger" at a bonfire before a pre-championship football game against Topeka West. Pep assemblies, rallies, and games found ubiquitous cheerleaders controlling students' enthusiasm through organized cheering.

From the starting whistle to the last fleeting second of the game, the cheerleaders kindled zeal in support of athletic teams.

Heralding Lancer Teams with Service

Loyal and spirited senior girls who were selected to form the Honor L strived to promote initiative and enthusiasm in the Pep Club.

As a blue and white L formation in the stands at Pep Club meetings and games, they led cheers and chants to spur the team on to victory. The selection of mascot Tsae Recnal and ushering on Dad's night exemplified their aid to the Pep Club. Decorating for dances and guiding parents on Back to School Night began the list of projects for the Student Congress, the Parent Teacher Association, and other organizations.

As an honor section of the Pep Club, the 89 members of the honor L continuously sought to provide service and encourage spirit.

Of Able Marchers

Under the big top sky of the gridiron or in the rings of the basketball court, Shawnee Mission East Synchronettes performed in a vivid display of precision and skill. With smiles as their make-up and uniforms as costumes, the drill team paraded at various events.

The band became the calliope for a variety of entertaining acts. The drill team marched during half-times at football and basketball games as well as queen coronations, graduation exercises, and their annual assembly. At guest appearances, such as the American Royal Parade, they again impressed spectators with exact rhythm and intricate formations. Under the direction of Mrs. Carolyn Howard, rehearsals were held seventh hour in the gym and occasionally in the morning on the field. With flags and pompoms waving in unison, girls practiced diligently for colorful shows.

Keen competition and performance made girls proud to wear the symbolic boot on Pep Club outfits of the Synchronettes.

Annual Deadlines Approach

Susie Spring's sprightly spirits exemplified the vivacity of the 1965 Hauberk staff, not only during the October sales campaign but throughout the year, as they sought to capture the year in a fresh record of events.

Twenty-nine students contributed enthusiasm, time, and abilities toward composing a yearbook that would be meaningful to each student. During seventh hour in the Hauberk room staff members called on their imagination and ingenuity to aid them as they wrote copy, took pictures, sold ads, and designed the new ads. Betty Carter, editor-in-chief, and Mr. Donald Wilson, faculty advisor, coordinated staff efforts and directed the production of the 1965 Hauberk.

Susie Spring added her imprint to the staff's efforts which resulted in a unique, panoramic crystallization of the year 1965.

Innovations Include A Weekly Publication

Producing a weekly newspaper provided an increased challenge for this year's Harbinger staff. Students selected from Journalism I classes advanced to Journalism II to tackle the new problems and responsibilities encountered in more frequent news circulation. Mr. John Mohn advised seniors as they gained experience in newspaper production. Preparing features like the presidential election poll or writing sports articles, staff members learned the procedures of printing. Ad staff members successfully promoted more advertising to meet the rising demands of a weekly publication.

Student apathy and Pep Club evaluation provided issues for editors Bart Kort and Gunnar Erickson to examine attempts to provoke student awareness.

Explaining his successful crop of apples with metaphysical questions, Mr. Mohn grasps his fruits of success.

Journalism Honors to Selected Seniors

Complementing a year of objective prose, membership in Quill and Scroll, the national high school honorary society of journalism, gave recognition to seniors of the Hauberk and Harbinger staffs who had been in the top third of their class for all three high school years.

The annual Quill and Scroll banquet, held this year at Shawnee Mission East, honored copy writers, advertising salesmen, artists, photographers, and editors from each of the three Shawnee Mission district high schools. Highlighted by the candlelighting ceremony, the initiation stressed the goals of all journalism; Truth, Learning, Judgement, Loyalty, Leadership, Initiative, and Friendship.

Senior journalists added their bylines to the membership roles of Quill and Scroll.

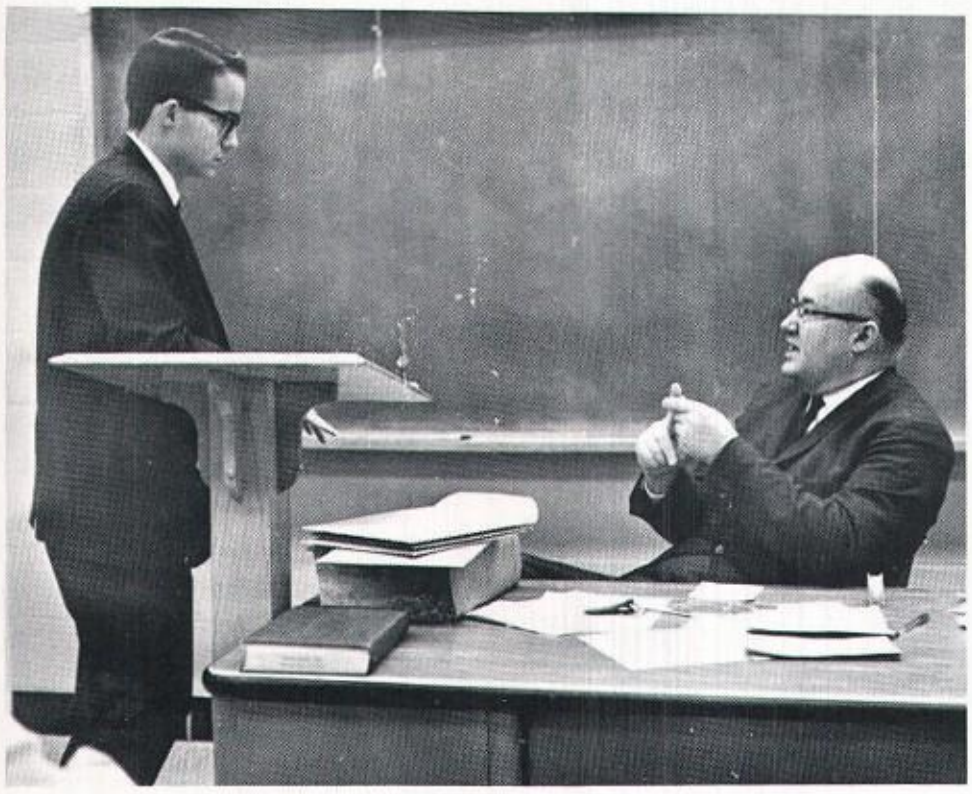
N. F. L. Captures State Forensic Plaque



John Bergholt and debate coach Mr. Swanson discuss winning tactics that led to a N.F.L. second place trophy.

Over one hundred students with oratorical ability were members of the National Forensic League this year. By earning points through speech and debate activities, they could attain degrees of Merit, Honor, Excellence, and Distinction. N.F.L. keys and debate letters were presented at an initiation dinner.

Officers, President John Bergholt, Vice-president Larry O'Neal, and Secretary Patty Blackburn, coordinated N.F.L. activities. Members aided them in organizing and conducting the cross-examination division of the annual Shawnee Mission debate tournament. National Forensic League members practiced in the classroom for contests and tournaments. Having accumulated more points than any other Kansas chapter, Shawnee Mission East won the 1965 National Forensic League plaque.

Entangling Opposition with Arms Control

Shawnee Mission East debaters rivaled numerous schools throughout Kansas, as they prepared various cases on the topic, Resolved: that nuclear weapons should be controlled by an international organization.

Beginning with extensive briefs, orators jotted down available information. Quote cards quickly filled file boxes with the opinions of armaments experts. Affirmative arguments were built around the need for change, while the negative rested on the status quo and repairs cases. Advance preparation brought sixteen trophies to the rhetoric squad, which was coached by Mr. Maurice Swanson.

When the debate season ended, second place in N.F.L. exemplified the triumphs of debaters, proficient in extemporaneous argument and in prepared oratory.

Organization Honors New Initiates

Carleton Gamet offers a friendly handshake and a warm smile to Ed Dexter, as he welcomes him to National Honor Society.

April held excitement and tense moments for those students anticipating membership in the National Honor Society. Through service, leadership, character, and scholarship, deserving initiates were announced into the scrolls of the organization during an all-school assembly. Old members congratulated the new, which highlighted the chapter's activities. Faculty advisors, Miss Elizabeth Boys, Miss Jane Lindell, Mr. Robert Young, and Mr. Duane Houston, conducted the search for new members. President Jack Clark, Vice-president John Pro, Secretary Nancy Wilhelmson, and Treasurer Gunnar Erickson coordinated the candlelight initiation.

Symbolic of achievement, the society's flaming torch pin represented the highest honor bestowed upon any group of Shawnee Mission East's students.

Sharing through Service

While upholding ideals of brotherhood in their activities, service clubs maintained past records of achievement by donating time and talents to aid their fellow citizens.

Making rabbits for children to use for physical therapy, planning a Christmas party for a cerebral palsy nursery, or promoting paper sales, girls extended hands to aid philanthrophic projects through Y-Teens.

Boys found opportunities for service in Hi-Y and Key Club. Hi-Y members sold pencils to raise funds for the underprivileged. In the Key Club, a national organization sponsored by Kiwanis Clubs, boys explored ways to serve the community. Service club members took the initiative in meeting community needs and bringing pleasure to others.

Diversified Activity Sparks Enthusiasm

Piles of green, pink, blue, and yellow cards mounted on the desk of club coordinator, Mr. David Schmidt, who sorted and recorded some 7,200 club placement cards.

Diversification in club programs offered a wide selection. Language clubs studied culture through speakers, films, and projects such as Christmas caroling. Sports clubs and hobby clubs also catered to student interest.

An alternative to Pep Club, Friday clubs provided an opportunity to engage in Navy war games or test concentration in chess.

Activity periods never failed to find students busily working in their clubs, voting on an annual AFS carnival booth, or planning weekly programs. Each club period lended a colorful spark to an academic school day.

Thespians' Acting Takes Front Stage

Thespian Mike Owen points out some My Fair Lady scenery that needs finishing touches to artistic Missy Mitchell.

Fulfilling the objectives of a National High School Dramatic Society, Shawnee Mission East Thespians became as versatile as the comedy and tragedy masks they represented.

Forming the nucleus for school productions, Thespians remained active by working as ushers, actors, or stage crew members. Club projects included the Thespian Assembly on February 2, 3, and 4, and the Thespian Banquet in May. Mr. Rawley Farnsworth supervised weekly programs, which included speakers from resident theaters and group trips to local plays.

A curtain call for the troupe came in May with the Thespian Banquet, climaxing a year of hard work and accomplishment. The announcement of the best actor and actress of the year's productions highlighted the banquet.

Well As Practice

A crescendo of musical talent developed this year as vocalists and instrumentalists sought proficiency in musical endeavors.

Following the conductor's wand, musicians varied the tone from classical to popular selections. The bands and orchestras improved musical skills by playing allegros and andantes. As accompanists as well as main performers, members of the instrumental sections capably filled the orchestra pit. Ascending the scale of accomplishment, the choirs and ensembles sang in solo and in chorus. But the forte came with public concerts where audience applause increased in volume with appreciation of the score of melody and harmony.

Through study, practice, and performance, amateur musicians climbed to musical mastery.

Lining up band members or conducting "My Fair Lady", Mr. Kenneth Geoffroy ably led Shawnee Mission East musicians during the past year.

Whether marching down main street in the American Royal Parade or on the football field at half-time, the band displayed school colors. The Blue Knights, the official pep band, added a musical note to cheerleaders' chants and a varied appearance with their blue blazers.

A more classical style of music was provided by the orchestra and symphonic wind ensemble. The latter, chosen by try-outs, performed for special assemblies and concerts. Long hours of section rehearsal rounded their busy schedules.

Familiar melodies of "Lawrence of Arabia", "My Fair Lady", and the Shawnee Mission East fight song showed the versatility of these musicians.

For Accomplished Concert Performances

Combining mutual interests and abilities, members of the Shawnee Mission East vocal music department built a repertoire of various vocal scores. Participants in A Cappella Choir, Girls' Choir, Girls' Glee, Mixed Chorus, and the newly organized Boys' Glee practiced to attain harmony and tone quality in their performance of songs.

Under the direction of Mr. Jess Rose, the choruses displayed diverse talents in memorable vespers and church programs, as well as in diverting assemblies and concerts. Events highlighting the year's musical activities included Christmas caroling on the Plaza and the presentation of "My Fair Lady" in February as the annual musical. In April vocalists attended district and state music festivals where they competed individually and in small ensembles against similar groups from other schools in the state.

ATHLETICS

The scorecard of athletics began with football and cross country during a warm fall, switched to basketball and swimming through winter, and concluded with track, tennis, and golf during spring. Although the schedule remained the same, the sports seasons had changes and highlights. New tennis, track, and swimming coaches directed their squads. During competition, students yelled for the 60 yard punt return in the opening football victory, the season-ending gridiron game featuring a new halfback-end pass play for a league championship tie, and the four-overtime basketball win over S-M West.

The highlights of each sport were more than a long football run or a close victory. The actual highlights transcended a winning broad jump or strategies of the 34 slant in football or the stall game in basketball. The uniqueness of athletic competition came from individual preparation. Straining over weight lifting with trembling muscles, running sprints with a knotted stomach, or timing the snap of a fiberglass vaulting pole demonstrated how each athlete confronted competition with a disciplined training program.

Butch Clark, Shawnee-Mission East's Back-of-the-Year, turns the corner and sprints up field, barely avoiding the grasp of a sprawled Topeka Trojan defender.

Spirited Lancers

Equaling their best previous season, the 1964 SM East grid team captured a share of the Sunflower League title by tallying a respectable record of six victories against three defeats. All of the Lancer triumphs were close, hard-fought contests, as were the losses. The Blue-and-Black fell to three foes by a combined total of seven points.

Early season injuries took several key gridders out of action for the Lancers. Greg Higgins, Bill Jackson, Pete Woodsmall, Steve Summers, and Al Costley were a few of the outstanding players to miss a portion of the campaign because of gridiron disablements.

In a review of the football year, various other factors should be mentioned. First, the annual award for the top back and lineman of the year went to halfback Butch Clark and tackle Bill Johnson. Second, the team captains were Larry Miller on defense and Bob McMurtry on offense. Finally, ten junior lettermen return to form the nucleus for next year's '65 grid squad.

East Opens Campaign with Three Victories

The 1964 Lancer grid squad began the season with a 19-7 victory over the North Kansas City Hornets. East was paced by Greg Higgins, who had scoring runs of 50 and 35 yards, and Butch Clark, who returned a punt 80 yards for a touchdown. The defense led by Clark, Alan Costley, and Layne Creason shut out the Hornets until the last quarter when NKC scored on East reserves.

The Lancers scored all their points in the second half to defeat Topeka 14-7 in the next game. Greg Higgins plunged two yards for the first score, while the second came on two air strikes, Bill Neal to John Mueller for 39 yards and a Neal-Clark connection for 21 yards and the touchdown. Jeff Kern supplied a safety by tackling a Trojan in the end zone.

A come-from-behind 19-18 win over Washington provided the Lancers' third straight triumph. Down by two touchdowns, East fought back with scoring runs by Larry Miller and John Mueller.

Lawrence Tops Lancers by Single Point, 7-6

Despite three opening victories, trouble was in sight for the Blue and Black as they lost the next three grid encounters. The Lawrence Lions spoiled the SM East Homecoming as they posted a 7-6 triumph. A 70-yard aerial from Bill Neal to John Mueller provided the scoring for East. Defense reigned supreme for the remainder of the match. When the dust settled, the Lions went home with their twenty-seventh straight victory while East gained a rating as the number two team in the state.

The first league loss for the Lancers came at the hands of arch-rival SM North. The Indians thwarted our players handily in all phases of the game. The only Lancer score occurred on a bad snap from their center for a safety. The final tally was SM North 7, SM East 2.

Wyandotte's Bulldogs inflicted the last loss of the season by the score of 7-6. East scored on a pass from Bill Neal to John Mueller. It was an evenly matched contest, the only difference being a missed extra point.

Final Three Foes Fall to Resurging Players

The last three games of the Lancer grid schedule determined whether the season would be a success or a failure. As it happened, the Blue and Black defeated traditional rival SM West, and turned aside Topeka West for a part of the Sunflower League Title.

In the seventh game of the season against Rockhurst, the Lancers played a steady ball game and were victorious by the score of 6-0, despite numerous scoring chances for East.

The Lancers avenged the loss of the previous season to SM West by defeating the Vikings 14-6. The Lancer defense sparkled, as it accounted for one touchdown and five intercepted passes by Butch Clark. The other score came on a 55-yard run by Bill Neal.

The last contest of the year was the most important for the gridders, as a victory meant a share of the Sunflower League crown. East came through with a 20-13 decision over the Topeka West Chargers. Lancer Butch Clark scored two touchdowns on short plunges.

East's leading Harrier and team captain Bruce Jones prepares to overtake an SM West runner near the finish of the Regional Meet.

Harriers Ramble to

The '64 Harriers of SM East culminated a successful cross-country year with a third place finish in the League Meet followed by a fourth in the regionals. These showings plus a fourth in the Shawnee Mission Invitational were the highlights of a season that was characterized by inexperience and a lack of depth.

Team captain Bruce Jones consistently led the Lancer distance men over the grueling two-mile course. Jones placed sixth at the Regionals and twenty-first at the State Meet.

Other members of the varsity squad were Seniors Steve Ewert, Wally Hurst, Bob Stephens, and Carl Jennings. Underclassmen John Wilson, Doug Boisdrenghien, and Rollie Hoffman provide Coach Cormack with top prospects for 1965.

Two-year letterman Steve Ewert strides forward in an attempt to pass his opponents and gain running room for the furious kick to the finish line.

Cagers Break Even in Early Contests

Greeting a squad with no returning lettermen and limited varsity experience, Coach Glenn Saunders displayed little optimism about the 1964-65 SM East cage team. However, the roundball players worked hard and managed to post a respectable 9-12 season record.

Two transfer students helped to mold the Lancer starting five. Senior Jerry Robley and junior Dean Stahlhut added valuable scoring and rebounding strength to East's attack. The top scorers at the close of the year were postman Duffy Carduff, guard Robley, and forward Dave Struby.

SM East fell to Washington, 36-52, in its initial basketball contest. The second game saw East triumph over Raytown by a score of 42-35. Duffy Carduff provided the leading offensive with 19 tallies.

East next topped the Topeka West Chargers by ten, 52-42, but fell to the potent Wyandotte Bulldogs 43 to 59.

East Finishes

Despite their excellent showing against West the night before, the Lancers lost to traditional foe, SM North, 65-49. Dave Struby led the scoring with nine points, although being in foul trouble early in the game. North held the cagers to three points in the third period.

East also lost its next game to the Topeka Trojans, 65-47. Factors adding to the defeat were poor rebounding and ball handling. Dave Struby again led with ten points.

Looking forward to a good finish at the Dodge City Tournament, the Blue-and-White came home with the fourth place trophy. In East's first game, Montezuma was downed in overtime, 54-49. Dean Stahlhut had his highest output of the year with 14 points. Powerful Wichita East conquered the Lancers in the semifinals, 58-41, with Dave Struby hitting for 13 points. East fell to Osage City in the finale, 57-56. Dave Chadwick, filling in for the injured Duffy Carduff, garnered 20 points.

Returning to the lineup, Gary Welch paced the Lancers to a 46-43 victory over Washington. He and Dave Struby led East with 8 points each.

The tension and emotional strain of a typical SM East game are revealed in the expressions and actions of Head Coach Saunders.

Quell Lancer Upset Bid

In their third overtime victory of the season, East whipped the Ward Cyclones, 66-65. Duffy Carduff had 11 points in the last quarter and 17 for the game to force the game into overtime. Jerry Robley and Dean Stahlhut came through with clutch scoring in the extra period to provide the victory margin. The following week the Lancers split two non-league games. Carduff and Stahlhut had ten points apiece to spark East past Lawrence, 47-40, but a four hour bus ride and cold shooting brought a 57-42 loss to the Wichita Southeast Buffaloes.

Returning to Sunflower League play, East's cagers dropped three in a row. A second half letdown by East after a two point halftime lead gave Topeka West a 58-47 victory. High scorers were Carduff with 13 points and Robley with 11. Despite hitting 32 of 43 charity tosses the Lancers lost to Topeka 72-62. Traveling to Wyandotte, East gave the Bulldogs a scare before succumbing 74-67. Robley sparked the Lancers with 18 points in the losing effort.

Third at Regionals Ends Cage Season

Highlighting the final segment of the East basketball season were a third place finish in the regional tournament and another overtime victory over Shawnee Mission West.

Two free throws by Jerry Robley enabled the Lancers to tie the Vikings and put the game into overtime. In the overtime, Dave Struby hit two field goals to help East win, 76-67. Duffy Carduff led the scoring with 20 points, while Struby had 15.

The following night, the Lancers fell to Shawnee Mission North, 70-56. Ten consecutive points in the final period put the game out of reach. Jerry Robley scored 20 points, his high effort of the season.

In the regional tournament at North, East drew the top seeding, but lost to Rosedale in the semi-finals, 47-45.

The Lancers claimed third place by downing Argentine, 59-47. Jerry Robley scored 18 and Duffy Carduff had 11 points.

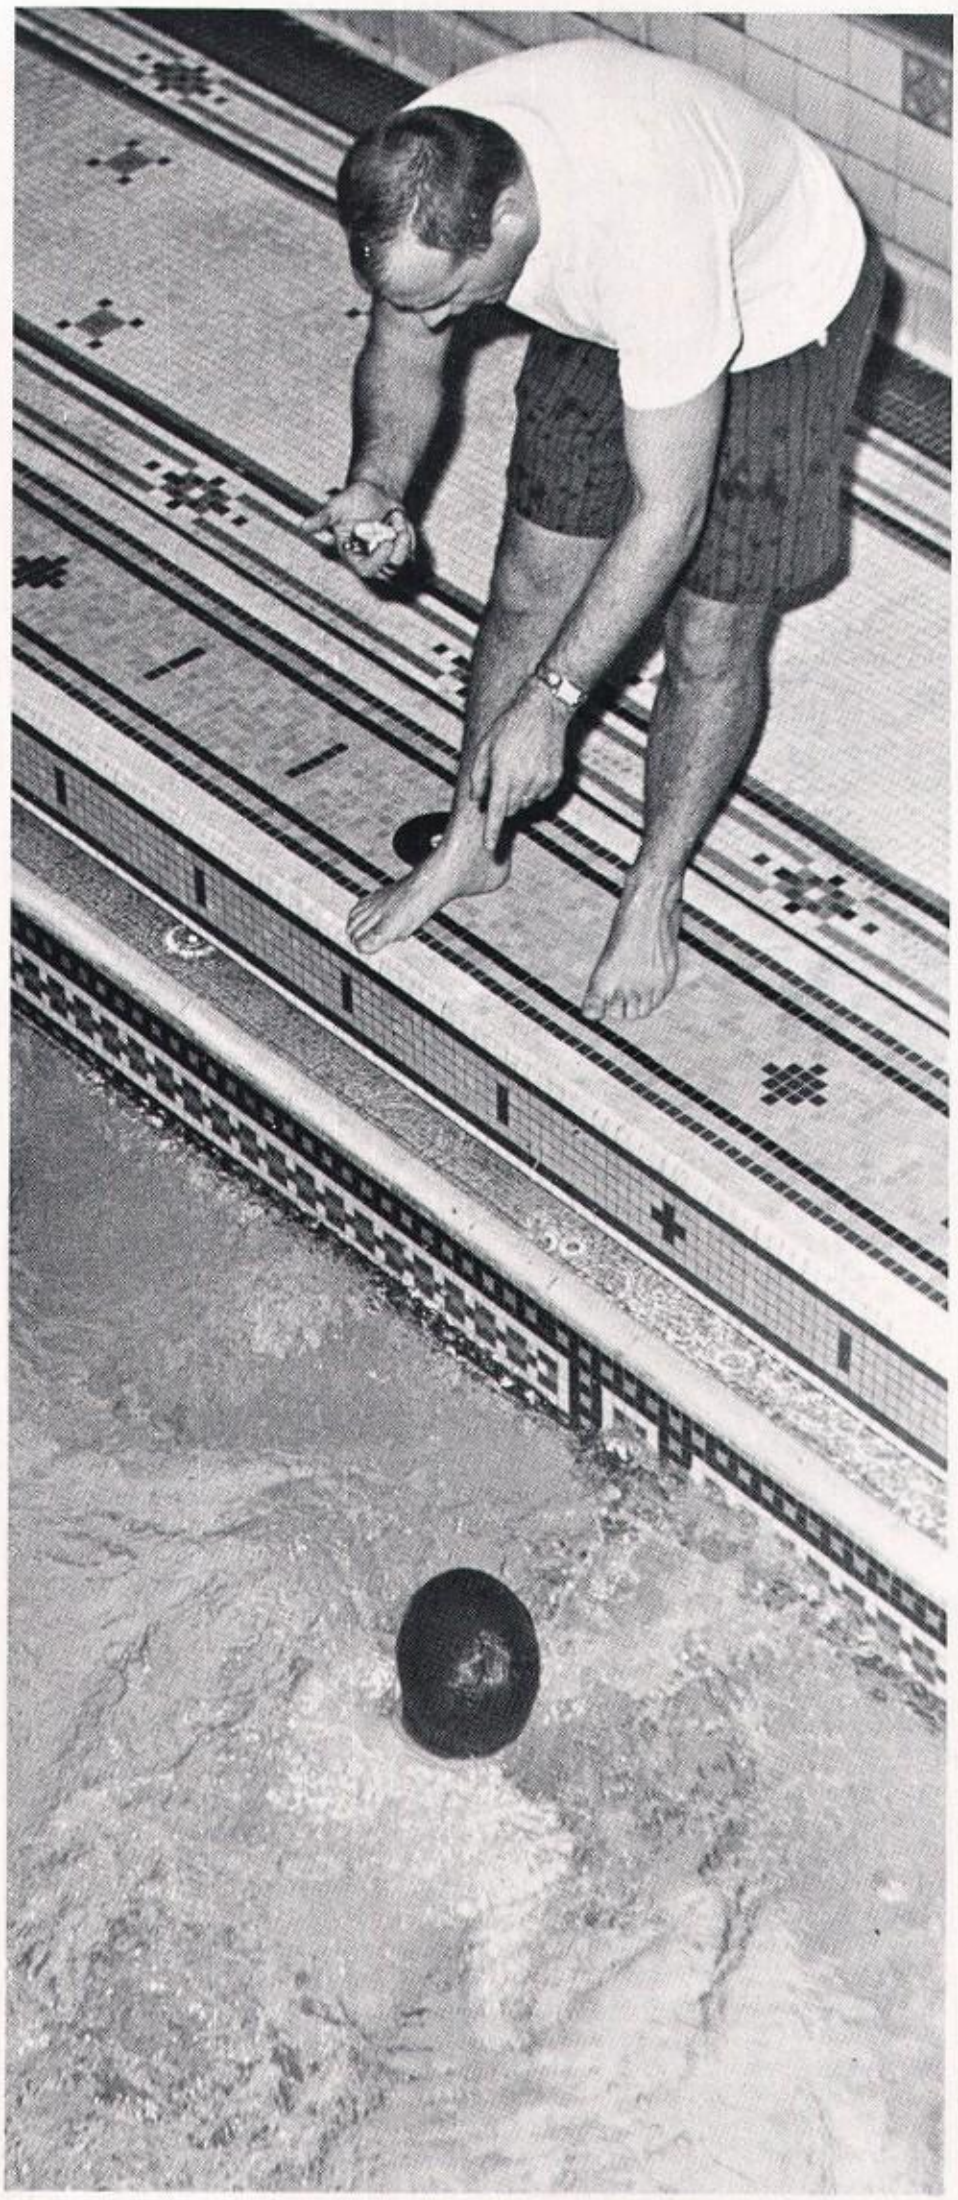
Tanksters Splash to Third in League



Doug Pennington's record-breaking victory at the Sunflower League Meet highlighted the Shawnee Mission East Swimming season.

Pennington's new record came in the 100-yard back stroke. Dave Schmidt, a transfer student from North Carolina, claimed East's other league triumph in the 60-yard freestyle. These performances helped carry the Lancer tankers to a third in the League Meet. East scored 57 points finishing behind Topeka and Wyandotte.

Robert Watson, new Lancer swimming coach, greeted only three returning lettermen at the beginning of the season. These three, who solidified a relatively inexperienced team, were Bob Sumner, Tom Ellis, and Pennington.

Watson built his team around sophomores and juniors. They led the Lancers to victories over most league and non-league foes.

Best Season Yet

Looking forward to a fine season, Coach Glenn Saunders welcomed back two lettermen and a host of fine prospects. The two lettermen were Al Gerstenberger and John Callaghan. Gerstenberger, one of the better junior golfers in this area, is speculated to be the top player on the Shawnee Mission East golf team this year. He and Callaghan could form a very strong two-man team or possibly the backbone for the four-man team. The balance of the squad is expected to be met by senior Ron Ten Eyck and juniors Bob Wells, Jim Halsted, and Bill Hobstetter.

Hampered by cold weather and snow, tryouts were slow in getting started. The first meet, which was scheduled to take place at Topeka, was postponed. The first meet will now be at Lawrence. Other top meets on the agenda are the league, state, and the Salina Invitational Tournaments, all offering keen competition.

Putting, a facet of golf which can easily win or lose a match, is ably demonstrated by Lancer junior Bob Wells.

League and State Meets Lure Tennis Squad

The 1965 version of the Shawnee Mission East Tennis Team was characterized by a new coach, a powerful nucleus of returning senior lettermen, and several talented underclassmen. New head coach Phil Berg was optimistic about the possibilities of a repeat Sunflower League and Regional Championships and a fine showing in the State Championship Meet.

Leading the squad throughout the season should be two-year letterman John Towner, Sid Kanter, and Jack Kilroy, and junior letterman Danny Oram. Oram and Towner have outstanding chances of placing in the state singles, and the Kanter-Kilroy doubles team took third in state last year and could go all the way this year.

Seniors Bill DeBaun and Mike Borders and junior Glenn Zumbehl, all previously lettered, should lend strong support to the Lancer cause. Several sophomores are also being counted on for help in carrying the team to League and possibly State Championships.

Track Squad Looks to State Indoor

New Head Coach Karl Englund displayed optimism about the prospect of a successful 1965 Lancer track season. Although this year's team had few really outstanding individuals, most events seemed adequately filled.

In the sprinting events junior John Mueller represented the greatest Lancer hope. Mueller consistently scored in all the sprints and was within striking distance of the school record of 50 seconds in the 440 yard run. Another underclassman, Bob McGahey, was also counted on in the short distance races.

The '65 varsity half-milers were Wally Hurst, Pete Woodsmall, and Steve Ewert, while Bruce Jones took honors as the top miler. The school mile mark of 4:29.4 was easily within Jones' reach.

In the hurdles seniors Bill Jackson and Dave Dudycha represented East's leading performers. Dudycha proved best in the highs, and Jackson demonstrated his abilities in the lows by claiming a fourth at the State Indoor Meet.

Lancers Tie For First In Initial Meet

Led by John Wilson and Steve Ewert, Coach Cormack's distance squad wearily trudges on during one of their daily warm-ups.

Expectations of sparkling performances in some of the field and weight events were expressed by Coaches Englund and Dalsing; however, optimisim was not the general mood in others. The pole vault was predicted to be the top Lancer point-getter. Three vaulters, Frank Hoffman, Chip Farley, and Bruce Schneider, were all within striking distance of the school record of 13′1″. In the high jump, Butch Clark and John Strahl hoped to erase the school mark.

The third field event, the broad jump, appeared to be an early season weakness, but it was hoped that Larry Fink or Larry Klein would improve enough to satisfy varsity requirements.

Leading the way in the weight events, seniors Jeff Kern and Dick Watkins were expected to eclipse the school record in the javelin. The discus event with senior Al Costley and juniors Grant Alexander and Rick Durrett seemed to have an abundance of depth. The shot put presented the greatest weakness, with John Lightner and Keith Dicken the best prospects.

STUDENT BODY

Our building was a modern, brick and glass structure rising from a hill at 75th Street and Mission Road and overlooking the Kansas City skyline ten miles to the north. A student body of 2,348 students came from the suburban homes surrounding the school.

The Shawnee Mission East student body was not different from other schools because it was divided into classes of sophomores, juniors, and seniors. But because the students came from suburban families, our school did have certain traits of its own. It was a student body that had fourteen seniors as National Merit finalists this year. With over 90% of each year's seniors attending college, the school stressed a college preparatory program. It was a group of students that initiated a student exchange with Central, an urban Kansas City high school. It was a student body that overflowed its parking lot of hundreds of spaces. Even the impact of a mobile population was evident, as a junior and a senior transfer student placed on the basketball starting team.

The students, raised in a suburban area, combined to make a unique high school.

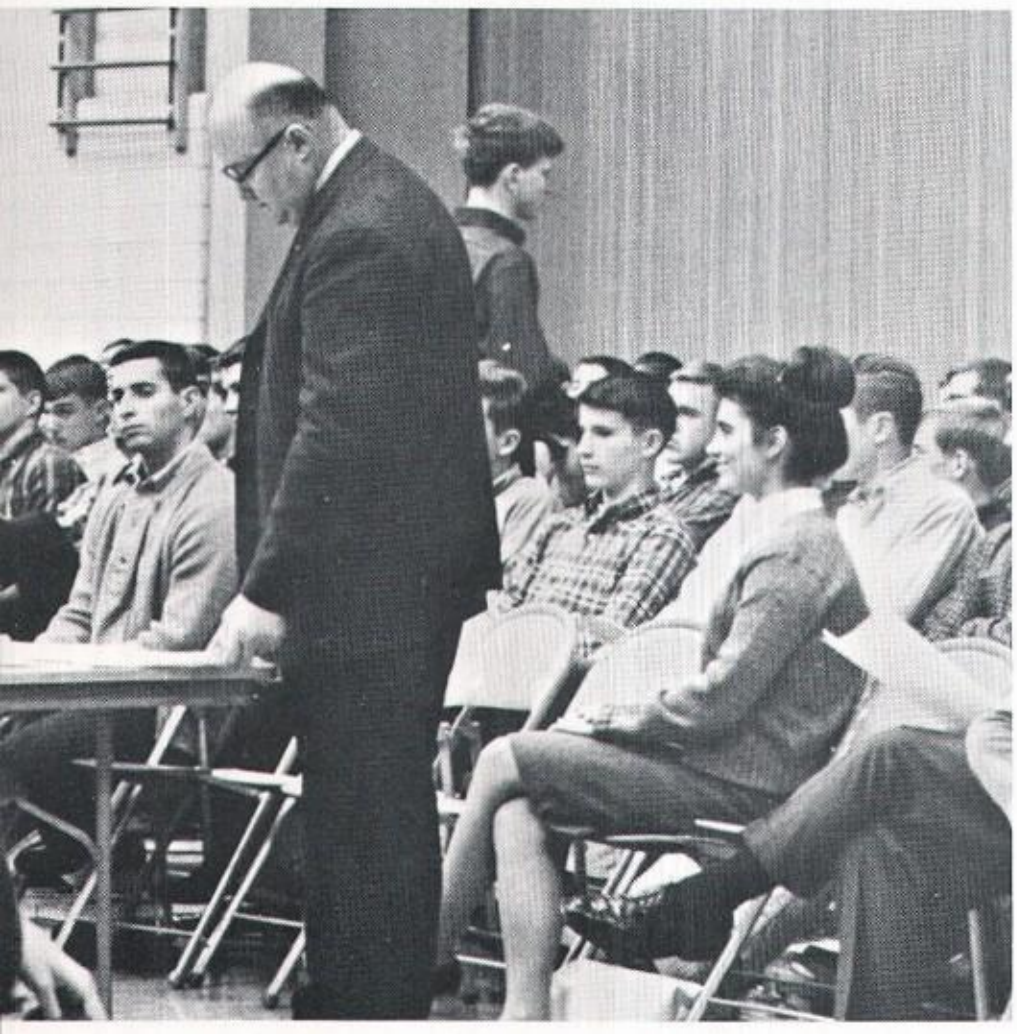
Start Initial High School Year



Coaches Englund and Grisham award numerals to their sophomore football players while Mr. Swanson prepares for the next awards.

The stereotyped image of a confused sophomore did not exist. After first week scheduling and room location problems, the sophomore class began their high school years.

The underclassmen elected executives Art Robinson, president; Ann Foncannon, vice-president; Susie Weed, secretary; and Susie Hensen, treasurer. Although officers played an important role for their class, the actual sophomore contribution, as any class, came from individual students. Whether writing the newspaper editor in support of their class, contributing in Student Congress, or playing varsity athletics, the class of "67" established themselves decisively for future leadership. Academics prepared for college requirements.

Between Newness and Familiarity

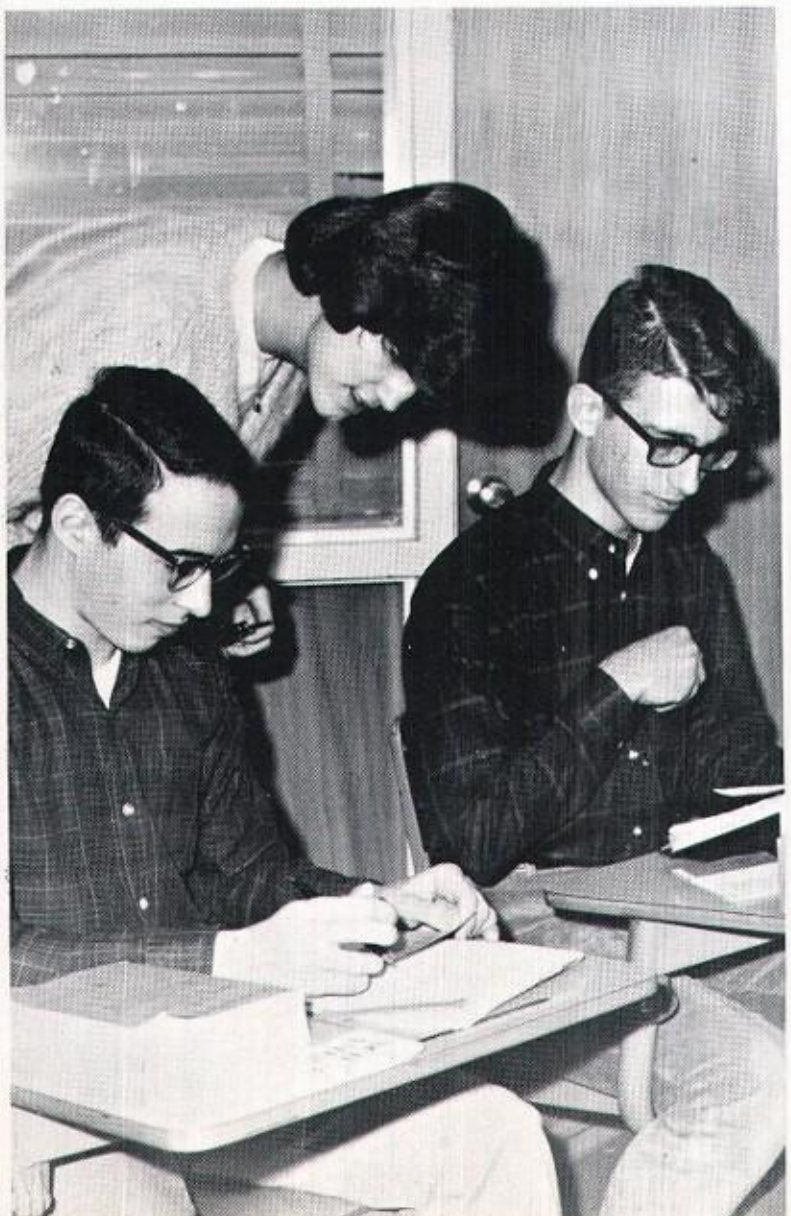
Meeting with committee chairmen, Junior Vice-President Lyn DuBois organizes a 1001 night preparation for an Arabian prom.

Pausing between the nervous curiosity of sophomores and the smug assurance of seniors, the Shawnee Mission East junior class found the middle year in no way average.

Taking the first of many pre-college examinations, studying the legislative re-apportionment in American History, comparing Shaw's Pygmalion with My Fair Lady, and beginning to make college and vocational plans exemplified increased responsibility handled by juniors. While President Ken Robertson headed class assemblies each Wednesday, Vice-President Lyn DuBois worked to co-ordinate the Junior-Senior Prom. Sally Wells, secretary, took accurate minutes and made the arrangements for Prom invitations, as Treasurer Judy Jarrell kept records of junior dues.

When the year had concluded, enlarged academic and organizational duties had prepared juniors for the even greater task of seniority.

Anxiously awaiting settlement of the thumb tack strike, Judy Benjamin contemplates holding up announcements.



Faced with conflicting authorities, debaters Mark Shapiro, Jackie Noller, and Darrel Reed approach the dilemma hesitantly.

Dave Robinson begins the task of selecting a college by perusing catalogues in the counselors' office.

of Work and Activity

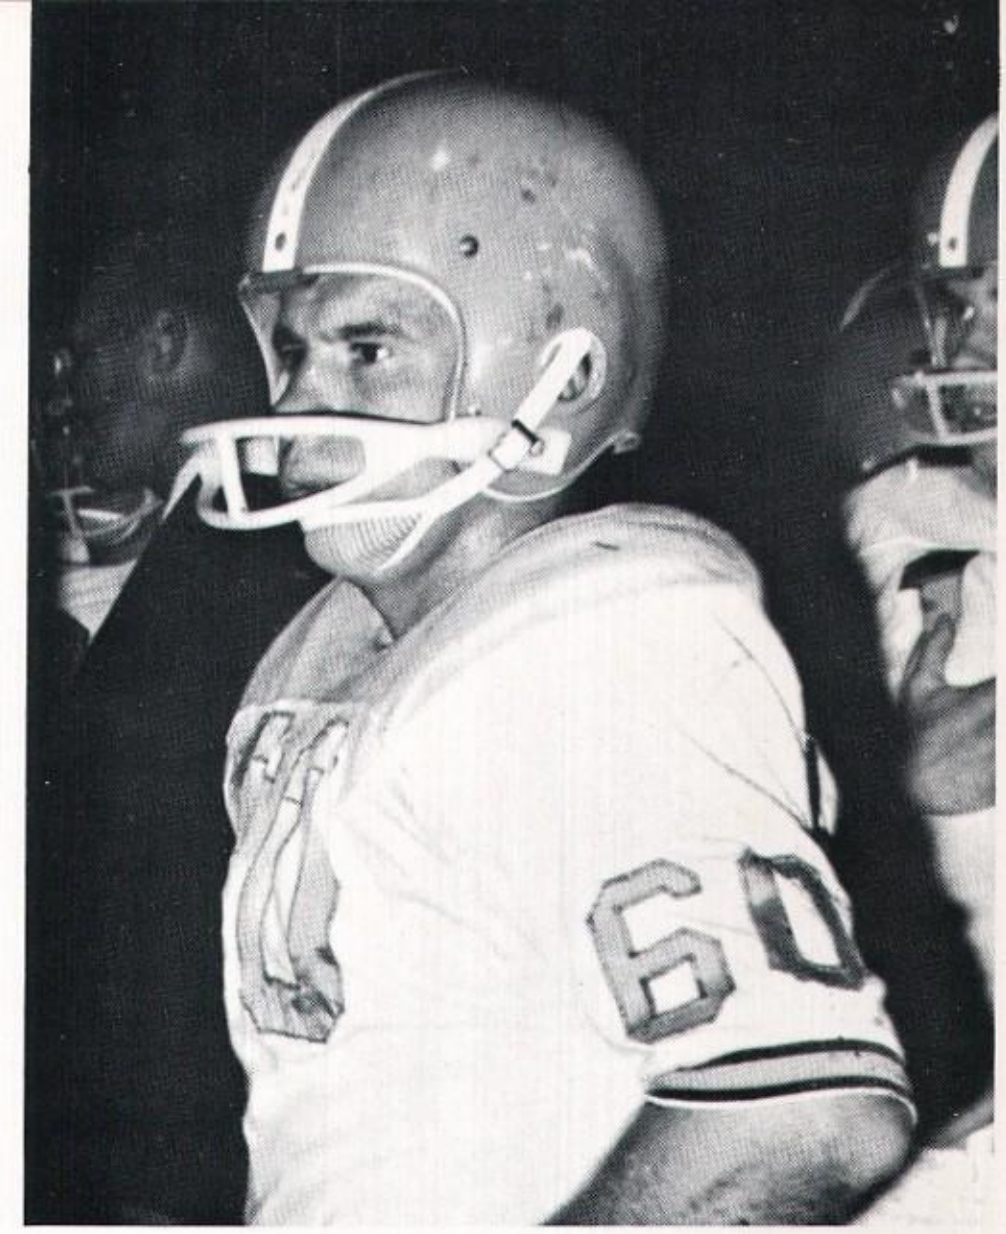
Having been taught and guided throughout the high school years, over eight hundred seniors entered their final terms of public education. United by the phrase "the class of 65," they sought to make this year the finest.

Seniors gathered knowledge from classes and experience from extracurricular activities. In courses open only to seniors, such as chemistry, citizenship, and advanced language, they discovered interesting fields and new modes of study. Leadership roles in clubs and school organizations including Student Congress, Pep Club, newspaper, and yearbook fell to seniors. Leading the class and supervising senior business committees were officers, President Alan Costley, Vice-president Paul Miller, Secretary Donna Graves, and Treasurer Suzette Leith.

Although the senior year ended with prom and graduation, memories of Shawnee Mission East and 1965 will live on for the parting senior class.



Awaiting his return to action, senior Bob Middleton concentrates on the opposing team's plays.

Editor's Letter

The theme of our book is simple. We have tried to portray the uniqueness of our school and to show the events which have characterized Shawnee Mission East in 1965. While developing our theme, we realized the necessity of creating an equally unique book.

Therefore, we started by adding eighteen extra pages. A separate activities section was also organized to present the events of 1965 in a chronological order. Hauberk activities were not confined to the staff's seventh hour class. During the summer Rolland Studio took junior and senior pictures. While the business staff visited local merchants, the art staff designed contemporary advertisements.

In October the halls were suddenly filled with pictures of Susie Spring, who reminded students to buy their yearbooks during the fall sales campaign. At the same time Charno Studio produced our five color pictures. As the month passed, the Hauberk room was filled with proof sheets, unfinished copy, and rough layouts. By the end of November, seventy-six pages had been completed and delivered to Artmaster Yearbooks, Inc. The rest of the year passed quickly as we obtained pictures, ads, and summaries.

During all four deadlines we have been constantly aware of our one purpose—to portray the uniqueness of our school. Like other annuals the 1965 Hauberk is a collection of pictures and copy. But unlike any other book this year's Hauberk is a reflection of the unique spirit of Shawnee Mission East in 1965.

In September when the year stretched before us, we had wondered how we would participate uniquely in varied activities. Our questions were answered with the progression of school life.

Common pep club cheers, curriculum programs, or queen ceremonies were customs that served as foundations. But spontaneously yelling after a field goal, tackling literature and applying it to ourselves, or gracefully accepting queen honors was the answer to what makes this year or any year different.

The year's uniqueness was centered in each of us. The passing time had etched ideas, beliefs, abilities, and memories onto returning sophomores and juniors and parting seniors. 1964-1965 meant capturing a greater understanding of living and knowing that next year again would be different for each of us and for Shawnee Mission East.

Melinda,
I'm glad to come back to public schools! Hope to be in your classes
next year!
Good Luck and

MEL,

WELL, ANOTHER YEAR IS OVER AND BOY DID IT EVER GO FAST! I'M GLAD YOU TRANSFERED INTO MY BIOLOGY CLASS, (AT LEAST FOR ONE HOUR I KNOW WHAT YOU ARE DOING) ANYWAY IT HAS BEEN LOTS OF FUN JUST KNOWING YOU THESE PAST COUPLE OF YEARS, & ALL THE TIME WE HAVE BEEN TOGETHER I HAVEN'T REGRETED ONE MINUTE OF IT.

WE SURE DID FIGHT A LOT. THIS YEAR DIDN'T WE? WELL IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE AS LONG AS WE STILL FEEL THE SAME.

LOVE

DAN

My Dearest Mel,

Thank you very much for leaving me this entire page.

I'm not going to say:

1- "It has been great knowing you." - It has not been great knowing you. I'll try to forget you all summer.

2- "Homeroom has been a lot of fun." - I've never been in such a messed-up class. Miss Peisler is the worst living teacher today. This class was such a bore, I used it as a study-hall anyway.

3- "The whole school year was great." - It has been for you maybe but I doubt if it was for you. I had a lousy sophomore year. This year was great, I've never had such a good time. Next year will be the greatest yet. Class of 66. Great.

4- "I wish you a lot of luck next year." - I wish you all the bad luck. I need the good luck.

5- "You are a great person to know and you are a good girl (what a laugh that is) and you are a lot of fun and you are very nice." - I will say that you are about as good & nice & funny as a person in your Condition can be.

See you next year.

I Love You Passionately,

Mel '66 (maroon)
